

the concept of retaining morse code to preserve an "art" is not in the best interest of anyone. We don't make federal rules to save "art". While morse code is an effective mode of communication, it is just one of many effective modes, but to single out CW as a mode to prove ones ability as an amateur radio operator is not realistic in todays world. Drop the CW testing completely and allow ham radio to join the 21st century.